AGENDA

Seqirus is pleased to invite you to an educational meeting with presentations from New Zealand based Dr. Edwin Reynolds and UK based, Dr George Kassianos CBE to talk about:

- Predicting the flu for 2022
- How the UK achieve High Influenza Vaccination rates: Specific vaccines for specific ages

G. Edwin Reynolds BSc (HONS), MBChB, PhD, FRNZCGP

Currently seconded to the Ministry of Health as a Principal Advisor to the COVID Vaccine immunisation Programme (CVIP). He is a general practitioner working in public health with a background in research. Trained originally as an immunologist/vaccinologist before studying medicine. Now a researcher and senior medical officer at the Auckland regional public health service (ARPHS) as well as a medical adviser to the Immunisation Advisory Centre (IMAC).

Dr George Kassianos CBE

Dr George Kassianos is a Specialist GP from the UK who is renowned for his contribution to medicine. Dr Kassianos was the recipient of the Royal College of General Practitioners' Foundation Council Award (2018), the most prestigious award for services to the College and General Practice. In October 2020, Her Majesty the Queen appointed Dr Kassianos Commander of the Order of the British Empire (CBE) for his services to General Practice and Travel Medicine. He is a popular speaker both in the UK and internationally.

“Tailoring specific vaccines for specific ages” activity on 22/2/2022, has been endorsed by The Royal New Zealand College of General Practitioners (RNZCGP) and has been approved for Tuesday 22 February 2022 for 1.5 CME credits for Continuing Professional Development (CPD) purposes.

This Continuing Medical Education (CME) event has been endorsed by The College of Nurses Aotearoa (NZ) Inc as one hour of professional development.

As Seqirus abides by the Medicines NZ Code of Conduct, only invitees may attend this event.
